The Declaration of Personal Response-Ability

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for a people to dissolve the artificially created misconceptions that have served to prey upon them, and to assume among the powers of the universe, a level of personal response-ability demanded of them by the Laws of Nature, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to take said action.

We hold this truth to be self-evident, that all persons are henceforth response-able for the consequences of their own actions and inactions, that they are endowed with certain unalienable response-abilities, that among these are response-ability for their own life; their own health; their own liberty; their own financial well-being; and their own happiness.

That to secure these rights, persons must no longer blame anyone else for the problems in their lives.

In fact, they need blame no one, not even themselves.

Blame is irrelevant.

Correcting the situation is the only thing that is relevant.
